

All poll promises will be kept, says Stalin

CM inspects the newly constructed slum clearance board tenements

For a green city: Chief Minister M.K. Stalin planting saplings before inspecting Tamil Nadu Slum Clearance Board tenements at Gowthamapuram. ■ B. JOTHI RAMALINGAM

STAFF REPORTER
CHENNAI

Chief Minister M.K. Stalin on Sunday inspected the newly constructed Tamil Nadu Slum Clearance Board tenements at Gowthamapuram in Ramana Nagar here on Sunday.

TNSCB has built apartments with 840 units at a cost of ₹111.80 crore here. Although officials said that it was a routine visit as part of various programmes organised at the Chief Minister's Assembly constituency of Kolathur, the visit gained significance due to the recent controversy over quality of construction at the new TNSCB tenements in Puliyanthope.

In another event organised by Tangedco at Kolathur, Mr. Stalin inaugurated the work of readying 8,905 transformers at a cost of ₹625 crore.

Minister for Electricity V. Senthilbalaji, Minister for Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments P.K. Sekarbabu were present.

Mr. Stalin distributed certificates and sewing machines to 353 women who completed skill training. He highlighted the steps taken by the DMK governments for the welfare of women.